BALMAIN HOSPITAL PLANS

MMEDIATE plans involve construction of a new medical block (as shown in the plan above). This will provide a new outpatients' casualty department.

Working costs have not yet been finalised by the architects, but it is estimated that the cost of construction will exceed half a million dollars.

In his annual report, the President said that the Board of Directors' time during the year had largely been taken up with the replanning of the hospital.

Numerous sessions with the Government Architect, a special sub-committee of the Board, the Chief Executive Officer and Departmental Supervisors had, he believed, been successful in creating a most imaginative and extremely practicable extension of outpatient facilities.

Subject to the Commission's approval, he hoped that a model of this major development would be displayed within the district to revive public interest in this institution, which had served them without respite since 1885.

Outmoded Facilities

The plans were outlined yesterday by the Chief Executive Officer, Mr K. R. J. Boylan.

He told "The Link" that for a long time the outpatient facilities and casualty facilities at the hospital had been accepted as being outmoded.

The service called for from the hospital in these areas far exceded the facilities available. The casualty department was now handling over 21,000 patients a year, and the outpatients' department 65,000 attendances.

That did not include the work performed by the pharmacy department in dispensing prescriptions for the many outpatients, nor the physiotherapy department, which handled over 6,000 outpatients a year. Another outpatients' section

New Medical

In anticipation of moneys being made available by the Hospitals Commission of N.S.W., Balmain Hospital is being extensively replanned.

The President of the Board, Mr. W. F. Pinerua, announced at the annual meeting of subscribers las? Monday night that final plans for alterations and extensions had been submitted to the Commission for approval.

-the X-ray department, where 28,000 X-rays had been taken last year-was hopelessly small for the service rendered.

Despite the inadequacy of facilities, said Mr Boylan, the work done in those directions compared favourably with that in other peripheral general hospitals throughout the metropolitan

The present outpatients' department is located in buildings which were constructed in 1900, and added to about 1920, when the hospital was far smaller than at present.

To overcome the inadequacy the Hospitals Commission retained the architects' branch of the Department of Public Works to prepare sketch plans for a new outpatients' casualty department, to be located behind Thornton House, and utilising the ground floor of Thornton House, known as the Harry Williams ward, as a casualty unit

The location of the outpatients' casualty and medical facilities services in this new location is not planned as a permanent arrangement, but is intended to meet the hospital's current needs and to allow further replanning later on without affecting the in-patient facilities.

It is hoped to return the outpatients' service and casualty service to the existing site in a new building to be erected there. This would be for the future. It would be a far more sophisticated service block.

Construction of the new medical block now planned will make a marked difference in the outpatient and casualty facilities offered to the public at Balmain Hospital, says Mr Boylan.

It will incorporate such facilities as special audio rooms (for the testing of hearing), an eye clinic, and special cardiogram facilities

In addition, the plans now in hand incorporate a proposal to convert the David Easton ward into an intensive care unit, to which will be added the new cardiac unit (financed by the dedicated work of the Hospital Auxiliary). This will mean that intensive care, cardiac and post-operative recovery facilities will be grouped and located immediately adjacent to the operating theatres and the main lift system of the hospital.

In case of urgency the staff will have quick access to this area, in which will be located most of the seriously ill patients of the hospital. The idea is to eliminate "scattering" of seriously ill patients throughout the ten general wards. Because of this grouping, highly technical skills, staff and equipment will be immediately on hand for patients in the acute stage of their ailments.

CHALLENGE

Balmain peninsula residents will be specially interested in the proposal by the Minister for Local Government, Mr Morton. to introduce legislation to permit houseowners to challenge home - unit development.

Mr Morton said that, despite opposition by the recent Local Government conference to the pro-posal, he considered a right of third-party appeal should be given in some circumstances against certain types of development.

Some Councils, in allowing home - unit development, had disregarded their planning schemes, and the Minister had been forced to intervene.

Of course, when a Council has zoned areas for home-unit development, and the zoning plan has been finally approved by the Government, objectors to development in line with the plan would have an uphill task.

However, from time to time local residents faced with what they consider undesirable development plans, feel very strongly that they should have legal right of protest over the decisions of Councils to permit such development.

Councils at times flatly refuse to listen to local protests, and this paper considers there should be an approved avenue of appeal against their lecisions.

The Balmain area might prove to be a testing ground for such a matter, in view of the feeling among s o m e house - owners that the attitude of Leichhardt Council towards home unit development is not in the best interests of the area.

We consider the Minister's proposal completely justified, and hope he soon irons out the problems involved in the proposed legislation.

Ferries Improve

The State Government has refused to improve the Balmain ferry service during the morning peak hours.

The Minister for Transport (Mr Morris) has told the Member for Balmain (Mr Roger Degen) that the additional cost cannot be justi-

Mr Degen said he was amazed at the decision. "Mr Morris admitted that the cost of hiring an extra ferry to improve the service would be only $26.50 a day", he said.

"This is an insignifi-cant amount when compared with losses running into many millions of dollars a year incurred by train and bus services'

Mr Degen said the main ferry service was operating at a more economical rate than any on the north side of the harbour.

The Government was willing to subsidise northside residents heav-

Hospital Plans

Mr Boyland says that the end result of the plans is that the hospital will be able to cater in better fashion for the patients it is currently treating.

Also, since it is intended to convert the existing outpatient facilities into a 32-bed male ward to compensate for the loss of the Harry Williams ward (which will become a casualty unit) and the David Easton ward (to become an intensive care ward), the net effect will be provision of additional in-patient accommodation at the hos-

All in all, the proposals amount to a very important improvement in the service the hospital will provide for the people of Balmain and Rozelle, and adjoining areas. Also they will help to cater for the substantial growth in population expected in this district as high density housing developments increase.
